HIS MAJESTY, THE BROOK TROUT.

My Dear Buck:

Without a doubt, oldtimer, I feel like tacking the blue ribbon on the brook trout for being the wisest, liveliest and gamest of the fresh-water fish. For downright nerve and fight, he is in a class by himself and he carries more tricks in his tail than any other fish. He is truly an American and of a sturdy type that can forage a living in any stream or spring-fed lake that is cool. Although he does not grow as large as his cousin, the rainbow trout from the West, or his foreign relative, the brown, or German trout, for his small size and weight he puts up the keenest fight of the trout family.

The trout is a trim-built fish with graceful lines and his constant battle with swift currents makes him a strong, husky youngster. As a general thing he is found in the small flowing streams where the water is cool and fresh, while the rainbow and brown trout can thrive in warmer and deeper streams as well as lakes. As a rule I have found the rainbow and brown trout in the roily waters below falls, in the swift rapids, and the brook trout in the quieter pools, especially those with grassy beds. The trout is a rapacious feeder, and takes his food from the surface, in midwater and at the bottom; he is, however, mostly a surface feeder and dotes on flies, grasshoppers, insects, worms, small minnows and even small frogs.

Trout Has Keen Sight.

Undoubtedly he has the keenest sight of any fish, and he evidently watches his prey before it strikes the water, as he will close his jaws on a fly the instant it hits the water, often leaping up and catching it on the wing. It's a pretty good guess that he watches the flies or insects as they fly over the water and this same sight makes it necessary for the rod wielder to match his wits against those of Mr. B. Trout.

Trout are caught with artificial flies, grasshoppers, worms, minnows, crickets, grubs and almost any small insects that are found along streams, also with very small spoons. When fishing with a fly it should be kept in motion, imitating as near as possible the movements of a fly that has dropped on the surface and is struggling to rise again. This can be accomplished by a slight broken twitching of the wrist. When a trout takes the fly, strike quickly, but not with a heavy jerk, only a slight move of the wrist is necessary. In taking a fly he snaps his jaws together over the fly, but is quick to throw out the artificial feathery substitute for a square meal.

Let Depends on Rod Work.

The sport begins with a rush right after you hook your fish and you sure have to work your gray matter, Buck, before you can reel a trout. He seems to know every rift, rooted hold, snag or windfall in the stream, and you got to keep your mind on the game to hold him from reaching cover, which means a lost fish and a snagged line. Let your rod do most of the work, that's what a good fly rod is for—keep your line tight, at no time give any slack, as the trout may not be securely hooked, and a slack line gives him a chance to cough out the fly. You will find the trout is more quickly landed if worked down stream, especially with a large fish, as the current is in your favor. Keep the rod well up and the line shortened, as a short line gives better control over the fish and you need every extra bit of advantage, as the sole object of the trout is to get away and at that game he is some little getter.

Fish Both Up and Down Stream. If you are fishing a slow running stream it is best to fish up stream and on swift-running streams fish down, making it a point to walk around pools and fish them from the lower end up to the head. In fishing up stream the fly comes quickly down with the current, this can be slowed up by casting diagonally up and across.

Trout Gorge Angletworms.

Early in the season the common angletworm is considered a delicacy by the trout and this bait if floated down stream under a shelving bank or around a log, which makes an ideal hiding place for trout, it's a twenty-to-one shot that another fish will be added to the creel. Hook the worm so that the entire hook is covered, using a No. 6 or 8 snelled hook. Always fish down stream with worms, as the natural action of the current carries the worms down stream. Let the bait float from about thirty feet above the spot where you anticipate the trout are lying and throw in the shut-off on all noise.

DIXIE.

Much Wastage of Potatoes.

The annual potato crop of the United States is around 400,000,000 bushels. Government statistics show that of this at least 75,000,000 bushels are lost. This wastage is due to the culls, rotting and freezing of potatoes in shipment and the lack of nearby markets.

Ladybugs to Fight Aphides.

Ladybugs will be collected by forest service men in Oregon before the period of hibernation is ended and freed in the wheat fields of the state to fight the aphides, of which the ladybug is the natural enemy. The ladybugs hibernate on mountain tops and in protected canyons.

History of Silk Production.

Silk was first made by Si Ling, wife of Hoang-Ti, emperor of China, 2600 B. C. Among the Greeks Aristotle (384-322 B. C.) is the first who mentions it. It was not until A. D. 530, however, that it began to be cultivated in Europe, the first eggs being then brought from India by some monks.

Daily Thought.

He who is false to present duty breaks a thread in the loom, and will find the flaw when he may have forgotten the cause.—Henry Ward Beecher.

Optimistic Thought.

There is no one that does not once in his life do a silly act.

Unwise Giving.

It is a very easy thing to toss a copper to a beggar on the street; it is generally an easier thing than not to do it. Yet love is just as often in the withholding. We purchase relief from the sympathetic feelings roused by the spectacle of misery, at a copper's cost. It is too cheap—too cheap for us, and often too dear for the beggar. If we really loved him we would either do more for him, or less.—Henry Drummond.
